AROUND THE TOWN

The baseball and football clubs both go to Innisfail on July 1st, also the Citizens band with some hundreds of rooters.

C. Heimberg, manager of the Consolidated Rubber Co. at Edmonton, was a visitor with Mr. F. S. Krempein over the week end.

C. L. Coffey, principal of the Gleichen school, was a week end visitor with his brother, L. C. Coffey, Principal of the Didsbury public school.

H. W. Chambers, who attended the big Presbyterian meeting in Toronto as a delegate from Knox Presbyterian church, returned on Tuesday to Didsbury.

Major Belson, inspector of the Alberta Cadets, paid a visit to the local school on Monday, but as the pupils had started on their examinations he only inspected the armory.

Rev. Mr. Marr, General Field Secretary of the Canadian Auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, of Calgary, was a visitor with Mr. D. S. Shantz over Sunday.

The ninth anniversary of the Westerdale Methodist church will be observed on Sunday, July 6th. Services will be held at 11 o'clock and at 2.30. The Rev. Thos. Powell of Edmonton will preach at both services. All are cordially invited.

Miss ... Bauer of Calgary will announce to the ladies of Didsbury that she will have millinery parlors over Mr. Liesemer's store about August 10th with a new stock of the very latest and up-to-date fall millinery.

At a meeting of the members of the Methodist congregation Monday night they decided to continue their Sunday afternoon services. Their new pastor, Mr. Armstrong, formerly assistant pastor of the Central Methodist church, Calgary, has received this appointment. Come and give him a hearty welcome. Service at 3 p. m.

Principal Reid of the Didsbury High School is the supervisor of the Olds schools for the examinations and Vice Principal E. G. Grant has taken the Innisfail school. Mr. R. Gibson of Red Deer has charge of the Didsbury High School assisted by Rev. Mr. Beecroft. The regular teachers, Principal Coffey and the Misses McMurchy and Sexsmith, supervise the examinations in the public school.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Band was held on Tuesday night. The Didsbury Orchestra asked to be affiliated with the Band and arrangements were made to take them in. Sports day for the Band was discussed and it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the Sports Day Executive, appointed some time ago, to set a day for sports. All former committees still hold office.

Rev. Mr. Milton, who has had charge of the Baptist church pastorate for the last two years, left for his new field at Ponoka on Friday last. Mr. Milton leaves a large number of friends in the Didsbury district who are sorry for his departure but wish him all success in his new charge. The pulpit at the Baptist church will be filled by a Calgary minister until the regular minister arrives.

Westcott sports are to be held next week, July 4th, and as usual this lively little burg is getting up a good programme. They extend a cordial invitation to the public of Didsbury to visit them on that day. They have

TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANT:

D. 1913, after the last publication hereof, and, in default of your so doing, Judgment may be signed against you.

The Plaintiff's claim is for the sum of $150.00, being the amount of Principal and Interest due to date of Defendant's Promissory Note in favor of Plaintiff.

issued a challenge to Didsbury to take out a tug-of-war team to pull for the Didsbury cup, which they hold at present. It's up to us to get busy if this cup is to be brought back to town.

Rev. Mr. Marr, General Secretary of the Canadian auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, occupied the pulpit in the Evangelical church on Sunday afternoon and at the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening. Those who heard Mr. Marr were very much impressed with his sermons. They were a clear and concise statement of the conditions which exist in Canada today, and also brought very plainly to the notice of his audiences their duty in helping along the cause which he represented. Rev. Mr. Beecroft sang a solo at the Presbyterian church services which was very much enjoyed by the large congregation present.

Cadets to go to Calgary

The Cadets of the Didsbury school are requested to meet at the school grounds on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 for further instructions regarding the cadet camp at Calgary which starts on Monday next. This camp promises to be a fine outing for the boys, who will be well looked after. The Y. M. C. A. and other organizations will be on hand to welcome them, and will help to look after their welfare. It is also reported that the Calgary Fair Association will issue passes to the boys for a visit to the Fair. Free transportation and all expenses will be provided.

A sprained ankle may as a rule be cured in from three to four days by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle. For sale by all dealers.

Cemetery Meeting

The meeting of those interested in cemetery matters which was called by the cemetery trustees for Friday night last did not result in a very big turnout, only one or two people besides the trustees being present. The reason the meeting was called was because more funds are needed to complete the work of restoration of the cemetery and also to discuss the best way to fix the roads, walks and lots. Those who are interested in the cemetery will be given a chance in the near future to subscribe more funds for the trustees to complete their work. The cemetery presents a better appearance even now when the work is not completed but would look still better if the trustees had more funds.

The Uplift

A noted English parliamentarian tossed back his thick white mane of hair, stroked his white beard and said in a broad Scotch accent to a New York reporter:

The rise in the world of wages has been great, but the rise in the world of prices has been greater. We have had progress, but it has been progress in the wrong direction.

A tourist was travelling in your Far West. As he inspected an Indian encampment he said to his cowboy guide:

And are these Indians progressing? "Butcher life, the cowboy answered, taking a fresh chew of tobacco. "Butcher life they're progressing. All their medicine men are patent medicine men now."

As a vermifuge there is nothing so potent as Mother Graves' Worm Expeller, and it can be given to the most delicate child without fear of injury to the constitution.

Look here, Mr. Editor, exclaimed an rate caller, you referred to me yesterday as a reformed drunkard. You must apologize, or I'll sue your paper for libel.

Very well, sir, replied the editor. I'll retract the statement cheerfully. I'll say you haven't reformed.

When the Trouble Began

A friend of the family had been summoned to testify much against his will, as to domestic disturbances in a certain household.

You saw those blows administered? asked counsel.

Yes, sir, replied the witness.

Did you witness the beginning of the quarrel between Mr. and Mrs. Dash?

I did.

When was it?

Six years ago.

Six years ago! How is that possible?

I was a guest at their wedding, said the witness.

Maud—Mr. Allround is a sort of universal genius, isn't he?

Mabel—Yes, he is exceedingly clever.

Maud—He is something of a lawyer and something of a musician. What is his profession?

Mabel—Well, the lawyers call him a musician and the musicians call him a lawyer.

A Famous Comedian

Arthur Roberts, the well-known comedian, in his early days was a humble clerk by day, and at night kept London in merriment. His fellow-clerks never imagined for one moment that the comedian everyone was talking about was the quiet youth who sat amongst them. Roberts enjoyed the situation, and perplexed the office by sending tickets with Mr. Arthur Roberts' compliments.

At last his musical work became so heavy that he had to resign. One of the clerks ventured to ask if he had got another situation. Oh, yes, I have an evening job. That won't bring you in much money, laughingly calculated the clerk; you had better stay on here with your good wages.

But Roberts did not think so, and casually mentioned that the evening's work brought him about $200. Then of course, he had to divulge the secret that he was no other than the great comedian.

Absent-Minded

Nellie (calling to her sister)—I'm going to make some lemonade, Mary. Where is the squeezer?

Mary (in a brown study)—The squeezer? Oh, he hasn't arrived yet, but I'm expecting him any minute.

Cool Courage

A tiger belonging to the King of Oude escaped one night, not long ago, from the menagerie fronting the Hoogly, swam the river, and entered the Botanical Gardens at Hourah.

Early the next morning two gentlemen, one of whom I know, strolled into the gardens. When turning a clump of palms the tiger sprang upon one of them, pinned him to the ground and began to lick him. His companion rushed up to the animal, caught him by both ears and kicked him! Recovering his senses, and realising the futility of his action, he slowly backed from the scene, and when some bushes intervened, ran to the curator's house, seized a gun and on returning to the spot found the tiger still licking his unconscious victim. He then realised that the weapon was a duck gun, charged with large shot only, to fire which at even a short distance meant possible death to his friend without killing the tiger. He walked straight up to the animal, put the gun to its brain, and shot it dead.

The friend was but little injured, his face only being disfigured where the tiger had taken the skin off when licking.

DOCTOR SAID HE HAD DIABETES

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CLEARED OUT EVERY TRACE OF IT

That's Why Mr. David Heon, of Nicolet Co., Quebec, is Recommending the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy To His Neighbors.

St. Wendeslas, Nicolet Co., Que., (Special)—"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills because the doctor told me I was threatened with diabetes. After taking ten boxes I was again examined by the doctor, and he told me that all trace of diabetes had disappeared."

This is the statement of Mr. David Heon, well-known and highly respected here, and he is only one of many in this neighborhood who have found a new lease of life in the great Canadian Kidney remedy.

It is cures such as this that have given Dodd's Kidney Pills their reputation. They are now known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the remedy that never fails to cure kidney disease, no matter where or in what form it is found.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure diseased kidneys. The reason they cure backache, dropsy, rheumatism, neuralgia, diabetes, urinary troubles and Bright's disease is that all of these are either diseases of the kidneys or are caused by disordered kidneys failing to do their work.

THE BIRD AND TREES

Tree Life Depends on Protection of Insect-Eating Birds

Each woodpecker in the United States is worth $20 in cash, when the value is estimated on the value of the good that this bird does to trees, says the Manchester Union. Other birds are worth sums proportionate to the good that they do. The nuthatch creeper and chickadee are worth from $5 to $15, varying with the locality and the condition of trees and crops. The downy woodpecker is also the relentless enemy of the codling moth, an insect that damages our apple crops to an extent of $12,000,000.

In the war between the insects and the trees millions of dollars are being spent each year by tree owners who know that insects have increased so rapidly of late years that their trees must be protected. The locust and maple trees are preyed upon by the bag insects; elms are sprayed in order to kill the elm beetles, while borers are slaughtering the hickories.

Her Predicament

Sarah Bernhardt was narrating reminiscences of the stage to a group of friends.

Mash notes, you call them, she said, laughing. Well, I received a very funny mash note once in a small town of your Far West.

You are adorable, my mash note ran, and I'd have preferred to send you orchids, but in this one-horse town I am reduced to molasses candy, of which I am forwarding a two-pound bag. Will you take supper with me tonight? If you consent blow your nose on the stage, and I will understand.

Mime, Bernhardt laughed again.

And the worst of it was, she said, I had a bad cold at the time and was afraid to blow my nose all the evening.

Look at the Clock

He would sometimes return home late at night, after his better half had retired, and when she asked him what time it was, would answer: About twelve, or a little after midnight.

One night, instead of making the usual inquiry, she said: I wish you would stop that clock, I cannot sleep for the noise.

All unsuspecting he stopped the pendulum.

In the morning, while dressing, his wife inquired artlessly: Oh, by the way, what time did you get home?

About midnight, replied the erring one.

Alonso, look at that clock!

The hands of the clock pointed to 2.30.

Table Conventions

A certain wealthy lady celebrated her birthday by inviting some of her old country villagers to dinner with her. They were all right as long as the soup was just soup, but when a footman appeared on the left, holding out a plate with chips of toast on it, confusion followed.

One old man scratched his head in perplexity, until a light dawned on his brain.

Here, my lad, if the wantest some of my soup, they can have it, he said, and ladled a spoonful on to the bread.

Conscription

Conscription, which is now causing heated discussion in England, in its modern form (for it existed in Rome) was born in France in 1798. Between that year and 1813 over four million men were thus levied for the army of France. Kendal is trying hard to understand the meaning of the word, which some local politicians contend means merely an old vicious system under which a rich man could buy himself off and another might escape if lucky enough to draw a blank. But France has long ago abolished these privileges, and we still call it 'conscription' which literally means the keeping of a register.

The Solar Plexus a Great Nerve Centre

With the single exception of the brain itself, the solar plexus is the most important nerve centre in the human body.

Situated just back of the stomach and close to the spinal cord, the solar plexus supplies the motor nerves to the vital organs. Injury to or weakness of the solar plexus consequently means incapacity of the vital organs of the body. This explains why a blow which reaches the solar plexus means helplessness to the person receiving it.

These nerve centres all demand an enormous quantity of good, rich blood and, failing to get this, the nerve cells are starved and depleted, and fail to supply vital energy to the digestive and eliminating organs.

The wonderful success of Dr.

Leopold's Humor

Wit was not commonly associated with the late Leopold of Belgium in life, but in a recent volume of reminiscences Lady Dorothy Nevill has credited his majesty with at least one good thing.

King Leopold was one addressed by a person of a type, half-snob, half-revolutionary.

My only regret your majesty he volunteered, is that you should be a king when you are so admirably equipped by nature to be an ideal president of the Belgian republic.

Thank you very much, returned the king. I shall remember your remark when I go to see my doctor this afternoon, and tell him what a pity it is that he is not a veterinary surgeon.

Costiveness and its Cure.—When the excretory organs refuse to perform their functions properly the intestines become clogged. This is known as costiveness, and if neglected gives rise to dangerous complications. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will effect a speedy cure. At the first intimation of this ailment the sufferer should procure a packet of the pills and put himself under a course of treatment. The good effects of the pills will be almost immediately evident.

A professor, whose pupils made too much noise, let the following naïveté slip out: Gentlemen, if everybody be silent we shall be better able to discover who makes the row.

This reminds us of a medical report which began thus: There exists a great number of families in Dublin who have died of cholera.

I am stating the exact truth. And you have kindly come—shall we say a couple of hundred miles—to say it? Inquired Muller blandly.

You may put it in that way if you like. May I ask on whose behalf? I must first know what you think about it, Mr. Muller. You may rest content I have credentials. I will produce them if you are willing to meet me.

How do you know I have these documents of which you speak with such assurance? How do you know there are such papers?

You do not deny it? I state nothing; I deny nothing; I only await information from you who have so much; this with a very sarcastic intonation.

I have sufficient for my purpose. The documents are in your possession here in this house. In honor, if not in law, you are bound to give them up; for they affect a dispute in which the amity of nations is engaged, and upon which millions of lives may depend. In doing so you will be doing an honorable thing, a signal act of justice, and you will be conferring a favor in a quarter capable of appreciating it, and of showing its appreciation in any way you may choose.

Really, Mr. Murgatroyd, such eloquence ought to make its mark in some great assembly—in the British House of Commons for example; you would be an ornament to that assembly.

This is trifling, Mr. Muller. Are you willing to think over what I have been saying?

Muller rose, and Murgatroyd rose also. The former said—

I thank you for your game of whist, Mr. Murgatroyd of the Pioneer. You take a hand well in diplomacy, too, but even the cleverest diplomacy is not always successful. Shall I tell you? The truth is in a nutshell. It lies in two sentences; you may put them in your pipe and smoke them. They are—first, I have not got the papers you dream of; second, I do not love your England.

Is that your final answer?

That is my final answer.

You will forgive me if I satisfy myself of the truth of your statement in an independent manner, if I think fit. You are denying justice and obscuring truth if I am rightly informed, and I am determined to bring that truth to light by some means, if possible. I give you fair warning.

You may apply for a search-warrant if you think fit.

You know we cannot do these things in England. It is different in Germany.

The shot told.

I will wish you good night. You get insolent, Mr. Murgatroyd.

If attacking the country of one's birth is insolence, I can hardly be said to have had a monopoly of it.

Muller said not a word; but stalked on in front through the refectory to the hall-door, which he unlocked.

Good night, Mr. Diplomatist Murgatroyd.

Remember I have warned you—I mean to have those documents.

Muller laughed and shrugged his shoulders.

By all means; you are welcome. Then he slammed the door and locked it.

CHAPTER IV.—DOUBTS

Sir Richard Hanley passed even with the world which knew him fairly well, as a man with a cold, impassive nature. He surveyed mankind through his pince-nez with a glance which quickened but elicited to a note of admiration and praise and winced not at all before criticism, detraction, even obloquy. It was part of the secret of his power that men could not read him as they read others. His other gifts were an oratorical power of the first order, a grasp alike of broad situations and complex details, and great business capacity.

Rising steadily year by year, Sir Richard had now attained the highest rank open to a commoner save one—and even that did not seem very far distant. He had staked his great reputation on the conduct of this Transalpine boundary dispute. Falling in that would put back the clock as far as he was concerned for years. The nation was deeply interested in the issue. It was affected in its two tenderest points, its pride and its purse-strings.

The statesman who failed at this juncture would assuredly suffer very much as a general worsted in some great engagement. The statesman who succeeded might ask for anything—and eventually, if not immediately, get it. Sir Richard Hanley's colleagues in the Cabinet were concerned in the matter, of course, but not deeply concerned in comparison. Their position as a whole was a wonderfully strong one for English politics, which as a rule loves even balances, and affects compromise in State and Church, the true Britannic via media. Failure in this Transalpine dispute would shake them a little, would lose them a few bye elections; but it would not upset them.

The great nation which rules half the world and finances the rest, forgets the gravest issues of foreign politics in a week or two. If there has been failure and blundering, or failure without blundering—the point is practically immaterial, a distinction without a difference—some one suffers. There is a splash in the political water; some one has gone down for a time at any rate; and the nation goes on its way, counting up its exports and imports, satisfied that consols have not depreciated in value.

If Sir Richard failed when every one knew he meant to succeed, his colleagues would be affected very little; he would be the loser; and some of them would not mind. For Sir Richard was a bigger man than they were, and might one day be their master; and on the perch which held him, some of them felt there would not be room for more than one.

Maud had left her father over his claret and a cigar in the dining-room after dinner. They had dined alone. He was longer than usual. Was he asleep? He very rarely indulged in an after-dinner nap; but lately he had been very much overworked, and his haggard eyes in the morning told the tale to his daughter and the butler—who was discretion itself—that the great statesman had not found sleep a pliable goddess to woo. Perhaps he had fallen asleep?

Maud had heard the postman's knock—the last for the night. The footman who answered the door had taken the letter or letters into the dining-room to Sir Richard. By a subtle telepathic process Maud was thinking of handsome, clever Murray Murgatroyd, who had come so abruptly into her life, and had fascinated her in a curious way by his strong confident, clever manner, quite as much as by his handsome intellectual face and well set up figure.

She would hardly confess to herself how often she had thought of him, since the night they had been brought so closely together, physically and metaphorically, in the little boudoir in which she now sat. He had sat in that chair, he had bent towards her, speaking in his eager impressive way. Why had he not come back? Her father had sent him on an errand she knew, but he had said he would return in three or four days. Yet more than a week had passed. She was sure Murgatroyd was a man of his word. Had he not kept his promise to the letter, and more than the letter, in the matter of her watch?

Besides, she trusted him, and when a woman trusts, she trusts altogether—at any rate until she is disillusioned; and then perhaps it does not matter much either way.

Maud tried to read a book; but her thoughts strayed. She would go and see what her father was doing. She ran lightly downstairs, and opened the dining-room door.

Sir Richard was standing at the mantelpiece his elbows resting on it, and his head buried in his hands. By the side of his right elbow an open letter was spread out.

It was an attitude calculated to appeal to the sensitive heart of a woman. For it implied loneliness, disappointment, physical and mental weariness. The strongly accentuated figure with the bowed head in the abandon of a moment, when the curtain was down, the footlights out, and the actor in the great drama of the world was an actor no longer—only a man.

Maud loved him with a passionate devoted love. He was her father and mother in one. Yet he habitually breathed an atmosphere which barred her entrance. She only shared part of his life. In that which touched him most deeply she was powerless to help him.

Maud twined her arm round his waist. Sir Richard started. He had not heard his daughter's step and imagined he was still alone in the room. A pre-eminently self-contained man, it is more than doubtful whether he would have permitted even her to see the perturbation of his mind, which his attitude only too obviously expressed.

His hands dropped, and the statesman turned round—

You here, Maud?

Yes, father, I missed you. I was getting lonely, so I came to you. You are in trouble? And with a gesture she indicated the open letter lying on the mantelpiece.

WHEN BABY CRIES

When the baby cries continually do not put it down for pure ugliness—that is not the baby's nature—it is to be happy and laughing. Every baby should cry on an average of fifteen or twenty minutes a day—that is how he strengthens his lungs. But mothers if your baby gives sharp piercing cries or low sobbing wails, he is in pain and needs attention. Nothing will relieve the little one so quickly as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels, expel worms, break up colds, and will make baby healthy and happy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It is the most trustworthy of worm exterminators.

"LIKE MAGIC"

New Food Makes Wonderful Changes

When a man has suffered from dyspepsia so many years that he can't remember when he had a natural appetite, and then hits on a way out of trouble he may be excused for saying "it acts like magic."

When it is a simple, wholesome food instead of any one of a large number of so called remedies in the form of drugs, he is more than ever likely to feel as though a sort of miracle has been performed.

A Western man, in the delight of restored digestion, puts it in this way: "Like magic, fittingly describes the manner in which Grape-Nuts relieved me of poor digestion, coated tongue and loss of appetite, of many years standing."

"I tried about every medicine that was recommended to me, without relief. Then I tried Grape-Nuts on the suggestion of a friend. By the time I had finished the fourth package, my stomach was all right, and for the past two months, I have been eating with a relish, anything set before me. That is something I had been unable to do previously for years."

"I am stronger than ever and I consider the effects of Grape-Nuts on a weak stomach as something really wonderful. It builds up the entire body as well as the brain and nerves." Name given by the Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Explained

There was one young man, said the chaplain thoughtfully, who seemed to regard my opening prayer with the deepest attention. He showed a degree of nervous impatience that was almost painful, and when I concluded—I made the petition a little longer on his account—I am positive his overwrought feeling were relieved by a sigh that was almost startling. I looked for him afterward, but he had gone. A young man with light hair and eyes and an obtuse nose—do you know him?

Sure I do, replied the doortender. He was waiting for the copy of your stuff for one of the afternoon papers—and he had to get over in time for the noon edition.

Why suffer or experiment with worthless preparations when the genuine Kellogg's can be purchased everywhere.

Edith—What if you don't have any children?

Nora—Well, then, in that case it will do for my grandchildren.

BOWSER ASSISTS.

He Feels For the Man Who Made
a Business Failure.

AND TRIES TO HELP HIM OUT

To the Extent of $55 in Exchange For
a Watch and a Ring—His Eyes Are Opened, but He Gets "Hunk" at Last and Turns In.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.)

WITH his dressing gown and
slippers on, with a good cigar in his mouth, with
his toes turned up to a
cheerful fire, with the winter winds
howling out doors, Mr. Bowser grunted
with contentment and figured it out
that this was a good world and that he was all right, and that Mrs. Bowser
was all right, and that everything and
everybody was all right and the goose
hung high. Then there came a ring
at the bell. Mr. Bowser answered it
in person, as he was expecting a neighbor
to call, and as he opened the door he found a rather seedy, middle aged
man waiting to say to him:

"My dear sir, I want a moment's conversation with you on a strictly
business affair."

He was admitted in a grudging way,
and, bringing a rueful smile to his
face and speaking in confidential tones,
he continued:

"After fifteen years of hard work I have made a failure in business. I could swindle my creditors or go into bankruptcy, but my conscience will not permit me. I wish to pay dollar

"THIS WATCH COST ME FIFTY DOLLARS."

for dollar. To do so I must sacrifice
everything, even to my wife's jewels.
Here is a diamond ring which I wish
to get rid of and turn the money over
to a heartless creditor who would even deprive my children of bread. Will you name a price for it?"

A Hard Luck Tale.

"If it's a straight business failure
you are not required to sell the shirt off
your back," replied Mr. Bowser.
"But it's a matter of conscience, you
see. I said I'd pay 100 cents on the dollar, and I'll do it if I have to go barefoot. Will you show that ring to your wife?"

Mr. Bowser had been gum game two or three times and was rather suspicious, but he took the ring and walked
back to the sitting room.

"Don't buy it at any price," said Mrs. Bowser as she looked at it. "It's probably some snide affair, and the man is no doubt a fraud, who thinks
to take advantage of your innocence."

"Do you mean that the man takes
me for a fool on sight?" exclaimed
Mr. Bowser as he flashed up.

"He may not, but I think he's looking for a soft snap."

"Oh, you do? That's you to a dot—
always suspicious and distrustful and always hard hearted. I shall buy the ring."

He Is Touched.

Mr. Bowser went back to the man and found him very reasonable. All
he wanted for his wife's birthday ring
was $10, and that was only one-third of its cost. It grieved him to part with it, but what was grief compared to integrity of character? As the tears
began to appear Mr. Bowser sent him off with $40 in his pocket and returned to Mrs. Bowser to say:

"How you can steel your heart
against the cries of humanity the way
you do is a wonder to me. You'd doubtless have turned that poor man
away with a stab in the back."

"And saved $40," she chirily replied.

"Do you mean that this ring isn't worth fully $100?" he blustered.

"I don't believe it's worth $5."

"Woman, do you take me for a fool?"
shouted Mr. Bowser, with furious gestures, as he danced around and frightened the cat under the piano. "I think I know a man of integrity when I see
one. I also think I know a diamond ring from a side of sole leather. By the living jingo, if I had your contemptible spirit I'd go hang myself!"

He walked about for a few minutes,
breathing hard and perspiring under
the collar, and nothing further was said on the subject. The cat gradually recovered her courage, the fire blazed
cheerfully and peace had returned to hover over all when the bell rang again. Again Mr. Bowser went to the door. It was the man of integrity returned.

"Pray, excuse me," he said as he crowded his way into the hall. "but
you were so kind to me about the ring
I have returned to show you this watch. I had thought to keep it from my creditors, but conscience stings me.
It is a watch that cost me $50, but under the circumstances—"

"Mr. Bowser, will you stop here a moment?" interrupted Mrs. Bowser.
He had no intention of buying the watch. He meant to get rid of the man at once. But Mrs. Bowser's interference nettled him and changed his plans. Turning to the man, he said:

"The watch is well worth $50, and I should be glad to give you that sum to
help you settle with your creditors,
but I have only $15 in my pocket."

"Then I'll take that," sighed the business failure, with a quaver in his voice. "I want to settle a claim at once—tonight—and know that I shall have at least cold potatoes for breakfast. It grieves me—but—take it."

The Truth.

Mrs. Bowser called again, but Mr.
Bowser passed over the money, patted
the man of integrity on the shoulder
and closed the door after him. Then he returned to the sitting room, placed
the watch and ring on the mantel and sat down without a word. After a quarter of an hour of silence Mrs.
Bowser went upstairs to keep clear of
any further row, and the expected neighbor came in. Of course he was told of the honest business man and shown the watch and ring. He began to grin as soon as they were placed in
his hands, and pretty soon he said:

"Look here, Bowser; you have been played for a sucker!"

"It can't be!"

"But it can be and is. Those diamonds are nothing but glass, and that ring isn't worth $3. Was Mrs. Bowser here when you bought it?"

"What if she was or wasn't?"

"She'd have detected the fraud at once. The game that fellow worked on you is as old as the hills. What on earth made you bite?"

"I—I wanted to help an honest man.
As for the watch—"

"Ha, ha, ha!"

"What in thunder do you mean?" demanded Mr. Bowser as his face kept growing paler.

"I'm laughing at the cheek of the man to come back and swindle you a second time. Say, now, but you are dead easy! This watch never cost him over $3. Bowser, old man, you've been lambasted for $55 with your eyes
wide open. You'd better let Mrs.
Bowser deal with such chaps after
this."

"But what does she know of such folks?" protested Mr. Bowser.

"A heap more than you do, I should say. If you are so easily taken in.
Well, well, I wouldn't have believed it!"

He Gets Even.

As the situation was somewhat embarrassing the neighbor didn't stay
long, and when he had taken his departure Mr. Bowser sat down to chew
the bitter cud. He had been chewing
for about twenty minutes and wondering how he could get even with Mrs.
Bowser when the bell rang, and he made his way to the door and opened
it to find the same business failure on
the step again.

"You will excuse me, I know," said
the man, "but I have a diamond pin
I didn't show you. It is a pin my wife gave me on my fortieth birthday, when
everything was going well with us.
As it is worth $150, I thought I could easily get rid of it among your neighbors for $30 or $40, but I find I can't.
Your exceeding kindness to me and
your desire to help me maintain my integrity lead me to hope—"

"Come in," interrupted Mr. Bowser.

The man entered the hall and opened
a pasteboard box to reveal a diamond
pin resting on a nest of red cotton.

"You—you have a diamond pin to sell
me?" said Mr. Bowser in a strange,
hard voice.

"Yes; I thought to keep it from my creditors, but my conscience won't let
me. It is worth $150; but, owing to circumstances—"

Then Mr. Bowser jumped on him.
The man of integrity was taken by surprise and rolled on the floor, but he
soon recovered, and there was a scrap
that upset the hall tree, tickled the cat
half to death and made the dust fly.

It lasted for five minutes, and then Mr.
Bowser got the door open and "lifted"
the man of integrity out into the cold
and cruel world and turned to find
Mrs. Bowser on the stairs.

"Well," she queried as he glared at
her and puffed like an old engine set
going for the fall and winter trade,
"have you gone out of the jewelry
business?"

He slowly extended his arm and
shook his finger at her and tried to answer back, but his emotions were too great.

"If you have," she continued as she turned and began to ascend, "you'd better lock up and come to bed and
let me rub you down with witch hazel!"

KING GEORGE A SPORTSMAN.

George V. Likes the Out of Doors and Enjoys It Frequently.

From the moment King George V.
ascended the throne of England his object was to win the support and respect of all classes. On that account
he has mingled with his people more
freely perhaps than any other mon-
arch of the day, with the possible exception of the intrepid Alfonso of Spain.

King George never lets a sense of the royal dignity keep him from enjoying outdoor sports. He attends the races, the shooting matches, the regattas and other events of the kind
and not infrequently enters into the
contests himself with great zeal.

The King is an enthusiastic horseman, and when the weather is fair he spends a couple of hours each day in the saddle.

The King is probably the best shot
in England. A few years ago while he was still Prince of Wales he was classed among the five best by a
sporting authority, who now gives him
first place.

His Majesty's prowess with the gun
is referred to by an admiring paper as
excellent evidence of his perfect physical condition, for the steadiness of
nerve, accuracy of eye and quickness
of hand required to bring down fifty
brace of birds to his own gun in one
morning's shooting do not admit of
any physical disability.

The King has accomplished several times the ambition of all grouse shooters to have four birds falling in the air at the same time, killed by two double barreled guns.

There is no doubt that the association of King George with the sport
of pigeon racing, like the association
of the late King Edward, has done
much to give an impetus to the sport.

Haunted the Captain.

An island skipper, on a run from Suva to Melbourne, ill-treated a Fijian. The black died, but before he died he lifted himself on his elbow
and spat upon the captain's uniform.
The Fijian was something of a witch-
doctor in his own corner of the world, and that captain immediately struck trouble. The night after the Fijian expired, the door of the skip-per's cabin was struck seven hard blows at midnight—blows that seemed as if they were administered with a sledge-hammer. The captain sprang
from his berth, but there was no one
at the door. At two bells the thing
was repeated, and again at four bells.
The captain was ready at the last visit. He pumped five bullets through the thin panel of the closed door, but
when he dashed into the passage there
was no quarry to reward his marksmanship.

The game continued for seven days;
then a companion of the dead Fijian
guaranteed to kill the ghost if the
captain gave him two pounds ten shillings. The captain paid, and the fuzzy-headed native immediately asked
to have pointed out to him the spot
where the dead man had spat upon
the coat. This was done and the ghost-killer cut the portion out and burnt it on the deck! The door-
knocking ghost never returned.

Well Known at Eton.

Lord Lytton was seated one day at dinner next to a lady whose name
was Birch, and who, tradition says,
was beautiful if not over-intelligent.
She said to his excellency:

"Are you acquainted with any of the Birches?"

Replied his excellency: "Oh, yes, I
knew some of them most intimately
while at Eton; indeed, more intimately than I cared to."

"Sir," replied the lady, "you forget
that the Birches are relatives of mine."

"And yet they cut me," said the vicerey. "But,"—and he smiled his wondered smile—"I have never felt more inclined to kiss the rod than I
do now."

Mrs. Birch, sad to say, did not see
the point, and, so the gossip has it,
told her husband that his excellency
had insulted her.

Meanings of Dyke.

"Dyke" has even more divergent
meanings than ditch in Lincolnshire
and bank in Holland. In Scotland it means a low wall or fence of turf or unmortgaged stones, and in some parts of northern England a "dyke"
is a hedge. . . . There are other northern districts where it is a pond. Originally, in English at any rate, "dyke,"
or "dike" and "ditch" both meant
what ditch still means to us, but as the digging out of a ditch necessarily involves the raising of a mound with
the dugout earth the words came to signify ditch and mound together and
eventually in some cases the mound
alone.—London Standard.

A Curious Epitaph.

The following epitaph is copied
from a tomb in the vicinity of Port Royal, Jamaica: "Here lieth the body
of Louis Cally, Esq., a native of Montpellier, in France, which country he left on account of the revocation. He was swallowed up by the earthquake which occurred at that place in 1692, but by the great providence of God was, by a second shock,
flung into the sea, where he continued swimming until rescued by a boat
and lived forty years afterward."

A SCHOLARLY MINISTER.

Hon. Martin Burrell Is a Versatile
Man and a Brilliant Speaker.

It is noteworthy that in both the Laurier and Borden Cabinets the portfolio of Agriculture has been held by men of the widest culture. Hon.
Sydney Fisher was a man of the finest taste—a scholar and a man whose
knowledge of fine arts was exceeded
by few, if any, of his colleagues.

His successor, whose important Agriculture Bill has just passed the House of Commons, is also a man of high instincts—a thoughtful, well-read
public man, whose speeches strike a high note in Parliamentary debate.

He is a Berkshire man and a graduate of St. John College, Hurstpierpoint. His life in Canada has been spent largely in two famous fruit districts. Fourteen years were spent in the Niagara Peninsula in fruit farming and in lecturing at farmers' institute gatherings. The last twelve years have been spent mainly at Grand Forks in the beautiful Boundary
country as fruit grower, nurseryman,
editor, mayor and politician.

Hon. Mr. Burrell is fifty-three years
of age and in the prime of his mental
and physical powers. Mr. Burrell's
work for the next few years will be closely interwoven with the expenditure of the $10,000,000 which the Government of Canada is to spend during the next decade "for the purpose of aiding and advancing the farming industry by instruction in agriculture,
including the work carried on by veterinary colleges."

Those who have not heard the Minister may gather an impression of his graceful diction from the concluding
paragraph of his speech in introducing the bill just mentioned:—

"On this side of the House and on
that are many men who either know
by experience the farm life of our country, or whose fathers or fore-
fathers have toiled on the land."

"It is well for us to keep a vision of
that solitary figure in the distant furrow, that stooped form tending the
hearth of the isolated home—symbols
and types of our national necessities,
our national virtues and our national
strength."

"Here between these four walls we sit year by year making the laws of our country. We do it amid much
strife; sometimes ill, sometimes well,
too often attaching importance and permanence to that which is neither
important nor permanent."

"Our laws would be better—there would be less bitterness in our strife
—if we were often moved by a sincere desire to lighten the work and brighten the lives of those who in
the silence and solitude of the fields
and woods are doing the foundation
work of our common country."

Such a Mean Man!

An incident occurred on a Broad-
view car in Toronto which caused considerable amusement to everybody except those personally concerned.

The car in question left Victoria street to go east at about 10.30, and
on arriving at the corner of King and Broadview two ladies and a little lad,
presumably about six years of age,
got on. On the conductor applying for fares one lady placed two blue
tickets in the box, and asked for Carlton transfers. The conductor then demanded a three-cent fare for the child, much to the disgust of the ladies.

After considerable argument the
woman agreed to pay, and took a $10 bill from her stocking, tendered it for the three-cent fare. This the conductor refused to accept for some time, but thinking that he would cause further annoyance to the women, he changed the bill by giving them small silver. Meantime the car
had reached the point where the women had to change and the conductor
tried to hurry them off the car, but
the woman, in order to have the best of the argument, decided that it was only right that she should count her change. This she proceeded to do on the seat, and kept the car over five minutes, finally departing with the words, "You are the meanest stiff I have ever met."

Canadians in Picture.

An oil painting of especial interest
to Imperial riflemen will be completed some time during the present
month showing in a group, which includes several Canadians, the officials
and supporters of rifle shooting. King George is the central figure as an expert marksman and head of the N.R.A., for whom the picture is being painted.

The artist Waldo Hester, whose portraits of celebrities in "Vanity Fair"
are well known, is now painting the Duke of Connaught. The picture includes, among others, Lord Chyles-
more, Earl Waldegrave, Earl Roberts, Sir Evelyn Wood, and following Canadians: J. C. Ripper, W. Stinson, J.
Duff Stuart, captain of this year's Bisley team; W. Burlan McHarg,
Lieut. Mortimer, and W. O. Morris.
The painting will be placed in the theatre of the Royal United Service Institution, where the King will inspect it.

White House Clerkship
May Go to Miss Hill.

© by American Press Association.

MISS ALBERTA HILL.

The friends of Miss Alberta Hill are trying to induce President Wilson to establish a White House precedent by appointing her to the position of record
clerk of the executive mansion. The office of record clerk was created by congress two years ago, but it has never been filled.

Miss Hill by her index work at the Democratic national headquarters during the Wilson campaign called forth
much favorable comment from every one who had anything to do with the management of this bureau.

In an entirely different manner Miss
Hill also earned the gratitude of Mr.
Wilson. She made a number of speeches in the interest of his candidacy and
also did a lot of unpretentious but effective private missionary work.

Miss Hill is the daughter of Mrs. Alberta Hill, formerly the wife of a wealthy resident of Chicago. Her childhood days were spent in Japan,
and she is an ardent suffragist. Several years ago Miss Hill and her mother traveled in Australia and while there made an extensive study of municipal problems with reference to equal suffrage.

Miss Hill once said that she had
three ambitions—the election of Woodrow Wilson as president, the salvation
of American politics and her own election to the assembly of New York
state. The Democratic success in November she believes gratified the first
two. The third she hopes to come true
in 1921, for she feels sure that by that time the women of New York will have the ballot.

FASHION COLLEGE AT BERLIN.

Professor Doege to Start Institution to Fight Parisian Ideas.

The Berlin capital is developing a revolt against the predominance of Parisian fashions. Professor Doege,
the eminent expert in the history of
costumes, proposes to found a university of women's fashions.

He says this is the only possible way
of delivering Germany from the domination of Paris in fashions. The past attempts of German artists to effect
this aim have failed, owing to their lack of practical knowledge and the absence in Berlin of a costume tradition. The university will have a library of past fashions.

An institution of this kind exists at Paris, and Professor Doege has already obtained approval of his plan from
many eminent persons, including the artists Westphal and Schulze and numerous dress reformers.

At a meeting called to discuss the project a woman speaker said that the university should be directed by a famous artist and the practical side
controlled by an expert in tailoring
and millinery. In order to keep in touch with the life of fashion the university should have connections with the most important shops and with
some of the better theaters.

Refused Duke's Request.

It took the Ottawa Board of Control only a minute to refuse a royal
request a few days ago.

It came through the Public Works Department, and asked for about 18
inches of the city's street at Government House gate to enable some alterations to be made whereby the entrance to the grounds would be improved. The letter from the Public Works Department stated that the request was made at the instance of the Duke of Connaught, but even that did
not deter the controllers from voting
against giving up the 18 inches of the street asked.

He Shot His Bolt

The householder smothered his wrath and descended to the cellar. Are you the plumber? he asked of a grimy-looking person who was tinkering with the pipes.

Yes, guv'nor, he answered. Been in the trade long? 'Bout a year, guv'nor. Ever made any mistakes? Bless ye, no, guv'nor. Oh, then, I suppose it's all right. I imagined you had connected up the wrong pipes, for the chandelier in the drawing room is spraying water like a fountain and the bathroom tap is on fire.

SUBMARINE GOLD MINE

Claims 'Staked' in Forty Fathoms of Water.

Captain Heater, of the Victoria, (B. C.) fishing schooner Jessie, and his crew are the hopeful owners of a gold mine over which forty fathoms of the Pacific ocean roll. The claims are staked with buoys in the absence of pegs of the requisite length, and in order to convince the world of the genuineness of their discovery a barrel of quartz was brought to port on board the vessel.

Describing the events that led to the staking of the submarine gold-field, Captain Heater said that the fishermen were out in their dories one day, and when they returned to the schooner they reported having made a great catch. He was told that in the nets were found large quantities of star fish, which in the West Coast waters grow to an enormous size. The star fish were placed on deck, and the fishermen also started to pry off pebbles and small stones. One of the fishermen noticed the stones glistening in the sun when the star fish were hauled aboard, and a hasty examination was performed to discover the reason. When they felt satisfied that the claim was a good one, Captain Heater and his men decided to stake it. The mine is located off Fox Mountain, British Columbia, between Kyuquota and Cape Cook.

A Real Good Time

What constitutes recreation depends of course, on the point of view of the one who is recreating. This anecdote shows what one youngster thought enjoyable:

A boy in a certain school wrote his finger badly. We are all very happy, are having a good time here now. Mr. S— broke his leg, and can't work. We went on a picnic, and it rained, and we all got wet. Many children here are sick with mumps. Mr. H— fell off the dogcart and broke his rib but he can work a little. The man that is digging the deep well whipped us boys with a horse-whip because we threw sand in his machine and made black and blue marks on us. Ernest cut his finger badly. We are all very happy.

A Wonderful Climate

As each man steps his foot on shore—wrote one adventurer of the period of the 'Forty-Niners' he seems to have entered a magic circle in which he is under the influence of new impulses. And, as an additional testimony to the extraordinarily stimulating quality of the California air this delightful tale is told:

A popular figure in the streets of San Francisco was a black pony, the property of a constable, that stood most of the day, saddled and bridled, in front of his master's office.

The pony's favorite diversion was to have his hoofs blacked and polished. Whenever a coin was placed between his lips he would carry it to a neighboring bootblack, put first one foot and then the other on the foot rest and after receiving a satisfactory shine, walk gravely back to his usual station.

Even the dumb animals felt that something unusual was expected of them in California.

Warranted to Draw

A day or two ago a woman entered a suburban telegraph office, and said to the receiver of messages that she desired to telegraph to her husband, who was in the country, for money. He pointed to the counter supplied with blanks and told her the rate for a dozen words. She struggled away for a quarter of an hour, and then handed in the following:

Won't you please send me five pounds by next post? I don't know whether that will do or not, as she felt for her money. If you were to receive a telegram from your wife, would you forward the money?

Well—well, I might, he replied in doubtful tones.

Now, you wait. I don't like the telegram at all, because I tried to keep it within twelve words. I'll write another.

She tore it up, walked over to the counter, and in three minutes handed in a new one, reading—

Am out of food and fuel, and want five pounds as soon as you can get it here. If you can't spare it I'll pawn the parlor carpet.

That would bring the money from me, said the receiver, as he read the lines and marked the number of words.

Then it will from him. Send it quick.

Deadly Work

Sir Robert Edgecumbe gives an ancient jibe this local edge and setting: A Dorset doctor of somewhat boastful temperament was dining one day at a big dinner party, when the conversation after dinner turned upon the army as a profession. The doctor remarked that his parents had made a great mistake in not sending him into the army, for which he declared himself eminently fit.

Oh, you make a great mistake, said a Dorset squire across the table; you would not have killed half as many if you had gone into the army as you have in your own profession.

Confound it, said the uptown druggist, that woman took all the change I had in the drawer.

Why didn't you tell her you could not break her ten dollar bill?

No, no, she's one of your regular patrons. Why, I've known that woman to buy as high as eleven one-cent postage stamps in a week.

ACHING LUMBAGO BACKS ARE QUICKLY HELPED AND PERMANENTLY CURED

Release, Yes, and a Cure for Lumbago is Now Known.

YOU CAN EASILY PROVE THIS

To cure Lumbago—surely it's a good thing to know how. Its information meant to Jno. E. Neave the difference between invalidism and robust health. Writing from his home near Cornwall, he says:—"A severe and prolonged attack of Lumbago in my youth rendered me at all times liable to aches in the back and loins. So established became the predisposition, and so frequent the attacks, I confess I accepted the condition as my particular weakness to be borne with as much composure as any evil circumstances might permit. One day an unusually bad attack developed, and unfortunately there was no medicine of any kind in the house. I sent to a neighbor for help and received with a strong recommendation a bottle of Nerviline. My friend was surprised we didn't use Nerviline, saying that they found use for it in their family almost every day. So quickly did Nerviline check the attack, and so grateful was the relief, that I was in a day on the high road to recovery. I have cured my tendencies to Lumbago with Nerviline, and consider it the most powerful pain-subduing liniment ever made.

For curing colds, hoarseness, tight chest and winter ills Nerviline is a marvel; as for Lumbago, Sciatica and Rheumatism, Nerviline is considered to be without a peer. In the home it is especially valuable, because it cures cramps in half a minute, stops nausea, controls vomiting and upset stomach. For internal or external use, wherever there is pain, apply Nerviline. Get the 50c. family size bottle; trial size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catahazone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The palm for absent-mindedness is probably taken by a learned German who one day noticed his wife placing a large bouquet on his desk.

What does that mean? he asked. Why, she exclaimed, don't you know that this is the anniversary of your marriage?

Ah, indeed, is it? said the professor, politely. Kindly let me know when yours comes round, and I will reciprocate the favor.

STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACH

Can Only Be Had Through Rich Red Blood.

When the blood is poor and thin and the stomach, in consequence is imperfectly supplied with oxidized blood and nerve force, the digestive process becomes slow and fermentations of the food goes on, with the formation of gas and certain acids. The pressure of the gas causes pain in the stomach; sometimes it affects the heart. When the gas is belched out through the mouth the patient is temporarily relieved, the sour risings in the throat, and the burning sensations in the throat and stomach are caused by the acid fermentations. There are plenty of things to neutralize these acids, or to "sweeten the stomach," as it is called, but they do not cure the trouble. Pure, rich blood which will tone up the stomach and enable it to do the work nature intended it to do is the only road to a cure. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich, red blood—that is why they cure even the most obstinate cases of indigestion. The following is a bit of proof. Miss Minnie Greene, of Hall's Bridge, Ont., says: "About a year ago I was greatly troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate caused me pain and distress. I would feel as though I was starved, but when meal time came the sight of food caused a feeling of loathing. There were days when I could not even hold milk on my stomach, and my head would ache so that I could hardly keep from screaming. Only those who have suffered from stomach trouble know the torture I suffered. I tried almost every remedy recommended, but found not the least benefit until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These I used for a couple of months and they worked a perfect cure and I am again enjoying good health and able to eat freely all kinds of food."

If you are suffering from indigestion or any other trouble due to poor watery blood, begin to cure yourself today by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Surprised the Patient

A doctor had two patients. One had lumbago and the other had some trouble with his ear. They had appointments about the same time, and the doctor looked into the waiting room and called for Mr. Blank. Mr. Blank came in.

Take off your coat and waistcoat, said the doctor.

You never know what a doctor is after, and you generally do as he bids you. Sometimes doctors don't know what they are after themselves, but a patient never questions them. If you go to any other kind of man you generally speak out if you don't know what he wants to do, but you don't do that with a doctor.

The patient took off his coat and waistcoat. The doctor began thumping him on the back.

Do you feel that?

Yes, doctor, yes.

Is it very sore?

No, not very sore, but sore enough.

Can you stand this? said the doctor, giving him a terrific thump.

Well, I can stand it, but—don't do it.

Well, well, you're not so very bad.

I will be when you finish your examination.

That's all right. You are not bad enough to worry about. That'll do.

You had better put on your coat and waistcoat.

The man put on his clothes. The doctor was about to shake hands with him, when the patient said:

Now, doctor, I'd like to know what you're going to do about my ear?

Which ear? said the doctor. Your ear? Then it's the fellow outside has lumbago?

Smart Business

A customer walked into a boot shop recently and asked for a pair of boots. The assistant, a youth of fourteen showed him a suitable pair, the price being $5. The customer stated that he only had $3 with him, and inquired if he could pay that and bring the other $2 next day. He was told that he could do so. After the customer, who was a stranger, had left the premises, the proprietor severely reprimanded the assistant for allowing the man to take the boots, saying he would never see him again.

Yes, but I shall, replied the smart youth. I wrapped up two boots for the left foot, so he's bound to come back.

The man put on his clothes. The doctor was about to shake hands with him, when the patient said:

Now, doctor, I'd like to know what you're going to do about my ear?

Which ear? said the doctor. Your ear? Then it's the fellow outside has lumbago?

Yes, but I shall, replied the smart youth. I wrapped up two boots for the left foot, so he's bound to come back.

That's all right. You are not bad enough to worry about. That'll do.

You had better put on your coat and waistcoat.

Didsbury 2, Red Deer 1

The second football match of the season was pulled off on Friday evening last between Didsbury and Red Deer. The attendance was small but considering the unpromising weather the gate receipts were reasonably large. Red Deer secured the kick off taking the ball down the field for a try which failed. By good combination plays, however, the locals rushed the pig skin into Red Deer's territory. On a corner kick W. Shantz notched No. 1. For the next ten minutes Didsbury's goal was in the danger zone but the clever work of L. Good saved the day for the local brews. The next tally was one which Cole stuck over, the Red Deer goal keeper failing to land on the ball. Before the whistle blew for half time Red Deer succeeded in putting the bullet into the inner ring for a bulls eye. This ended the half with the score 2 to 1 in the locals favor.

In the second half Red Deer settled down and succeeded in keeping the leather fairly well away from their danger zone but the clever work of Kalbfleisch and Reiher on the full-back line kept them continually on the defence. There was no scoring in this half (although some of the hot shots fired at both targets looked like sure ringers). Lack of practice on both sides made the game somewhat tame in spots but the showing made convinces us that good material is on hand which if properly developed will put up a strong argument for the "Snell Shield" which Red Deer now holds.

The third league game of football for Didsbury was played at Innisfail on Monday night which resulted in a win for the latter town by a score of 3-2. The score would indicate that the game was evenly contested, but such was not the case, Didsbury having everything their own way and only the usual run of hard luck of their forward line prevented them from piling up a large score. Oscar Watt, an Innisfail man, refereed very unsatisfactorily for both sides, allowing all off-side fowls and rough work to go on.

Baseball--Didsbury vs. Carstairs

Didsbury ran up against a better team last Thursday and were defeated 11 to 5. It looked for a time that the locals were going to give their first coat of whitewash, but Carstairs came back in the 4th and 5th innings, scoring 11 runs. Barney Shields, the umpire, gave a very creditable performance, but the third baseman of the visitors, who seems a peevish individual, crabbed on several occasions.
